

JOIN THE BATTLE. BEAT THE BUG.

Help Secaucus
"STOMP OUT",
the invasive
SPOTTED LANTERN
FLY

The Spotted Lanternfly is not native to the US. It is an invasive species capable of destroying woodlands and gardens.

They are harmful to plants, NOT people or animals. So if you see one of these adult Spotted Lanternflies, please help our environment by stomping on them or swatting them.

We caution against using broad-spectrum insecticides because they will kill all the insects in the area including butterfly eggs, caterpillars, bumblebees, lady bugs and many other insects that we need.

If you have questions please contact
environmental@secaucus.net.

Reporting individual locations is no longer necessary.